

Dishonest Doctrines

(Blog 0022 AndrewHadden.org)

Everything that I said at the start of my previous blog on this site, Blog 0021, “Building Unity,” could be said about this blog, as an introduction. Please read it before you read this, for your own sake. It contains knowledge and perspectives likely never seen in any other discourse on doctrine. I write from a place of submitted obedience to Christ, as a prophet, his messenger, not as someone presuming to have enough graduate degrees in biblical studies, biblical languages, theology, and more, to deceive myself into thinking that anyone should listen to me about the doctrine in their denomination.

My place of authority is not graduate degrees (though I do have some); it is in having been sent by Christ, and authorized, and commanded, to carry his messages. Let me give you some proof of that. I have been sent, for decades, to tell leaders things coming for them, their denomination, the nation, and the world. And those things have come to pass – for decades.

To give you some assurance, let me share a few instances. In the eighties, I was sent to tell top missions’ leaders of China opening to “missionaries” and the strategy, and it has been used by everyone ever since – using laymen to be spiritual shepherds. In 1995, I warned the leader of my denomination of sweeping revival coming and it swept the denomination for five years, and was the biggest thing since the denomination’s founding. I warned leaders of Arab Islamic terrorism coming ten months, and again ten days, before 9/11. I told of a vision of a world map with terrorism marked all over the world and saw basically the same map, fulfilled, on the news five years later. I warned of disaster coming, and within a week, our whole region was a federally declared disaster area. In April of 2016, God gave me a list of things coming to add to a sermon on the end times, and we have been marching through that list ever since. It warned of storms, including hurricanes, when Florida had not had one make landfall as a hurricane in over ten years. It has been pounded ever since, by even record hurricanes. I also warned of brutality, violence, riots, plague, and quarantine, before they came. I hope this is a sufficient sample

God wants me to list people. It is mercy, to spare lives. I warned someone who had just been exposed as having ritually abused her own daughter, long ago. God had me warn her, “Your death is coming,” hoping she would repent. She dropped dead on the floor while talking to a relative, less than three weeks later, in spite of her claim of a doctor’s recent good report. An associate pastor spread what he had said God was saying was slander against me. God had me warn him, and he suffered for years, lost a leg to disease and almost died, and then died of injuries from a car accident. Another associate pastor severely maligned me to another and died in short order from what was supposed to be a minor surgery.

I warned denominational top executives and they died of cancers way more deadly than normal. One of the warnings was for spreading doctrine leaders had admitted privately was basically wrong. I quit counting ministers that died after ten. Other ministers God had me warn had their churches/ministries close, or were removed from office, including high denominational offices. One Baptist minister spoke well of me to my face and then the opposite right afterwards to someone else, and, after he died a very prolonged and excruciating death, God said he was secretly in the occult, and God had sent back upon him what he sent upon me in the occult. I have obeyed to share these things, and it is mercy, hoping to spare people. God is serious about this.

I have written on dishonest doctrines before. It is in my book. God had me confront my former denomination. It was costing souls and Christ considers that a very serious matter. Christ considers it dishonest to create doctrines without considering ALL scriptures on the topic. The Jews had a culture that proclaims general rules without mentioning exceptions everyone knew existed. It is in the Bible. Other references in scripture may list the exceptions. A doctrine is incomplete without finding them.

Proof texting may seem clear, but it is dishonest theology if one excludes scriptures that weigh toward different interpretations and different conclusions. Ignoring context is lying, plain and simple. Taking scriptures out of context to make them say what they are not really saying is dangerous. Ananias and Sapphira lied to the Church on a very small scale and died at God's action for it. That is coming, because a revival like the book of Acts is coming, the great end times revival. Be warned. Apostles are coming, real ones. Judgments will follow in their wake.

As I wrote, I heard God say, for me to type: "You are not going to see what God is doing without making room for it. God calls people. Denominations are fetters at their feet, and walls around them. They must come down. I will do it, or you can do it. Choose. I will do it with deaths of those that will not listen – to me."
